MEMBER BIO: Jeanne Oliver

Where do I begin? Probably sewing stuffed animals with my sister, cousins and a friend. We sold them at a church bazaar. At about the same time my mom taught me to knit. My grandmother taught my sister and I to crochet. It was difficult for me because my mom, grandmother, and sister were left-handed. Therefore my sister picked it up faster! Not one of us realized the problem at the time. Not so easy living in a left- and right-handed world sometimes. So for a few years I crocheted backwards. Then when my first daughter was born, I stopped crocheting. When I decided to pick it up again, I taught myself to crochet the right way! No pun intended. I then found different places to sell my products. During a Fourth of July celebration a man saw what I made and asked if I would like to put my items in his shop. I ended up really good friends with his mom and started painting with her every week. I did a few craft fairs in Massachusetts with my family when I lived there.

Then I turned forty and decided I wanted sheep. Just before we moved to New York I bought two Oxfords from a dairy farmer. He bought them from a sheep farmer from New York! Who knew!!! Well, we moved to New York like Noah's Ark the day after Christmas 1992. We had dogs, cats, bunnies, fish and sheep, with four daughters. It was quite an experience, but a good one. That started our hobby farm. We love our animals.

When I moved here, I called the 4-H office and tried to get contacts in the area for sheep and spinning. They did give me several people. Most of the people unfortunately were not real helpful. I did end up going to Sunny Bixby's to learn to spin. The problem was I did not have the money at the time to buy a spinning wheel. I did not know about the Cherry Valley Spinners Guild at the time. When I did find out I was working and could not attend the meetings. When I retired, Peg Lewis started going to spinners guild and asked me if I wanted to go. Peg and I met every week to knit and crochet projects together. We started off working on projects we wanted to finish.

After the first spinners guild meeting I enjoyed it so much I decided to join. I love the group of ladies and the little tips to help improve my craft. Meeting Paulie has brought me back to what I started in Massachusetts, selling crafts and enjoying the camaraderie which I share with all of you.
